Used Scuba Diving Masks - Masks should be treated with a defogging agent before every dive (even if you just used the toothpaste method or flamed them). If treatment with a defogging agent does not prevent the mask from fogging, it is possible that some residue is left over from the manufacturing process. Try the toothpaste or flame tricks above.

8 Ways to Stop a Scuba or Snorkeling Mask From Fogging

One of the most fundamental items used in diving is the scuba mask, which helps keep water out of your nose and allows your eyes to focus better underwater.Wearing the right mask can make all the difference between a frustrating dive and an enjoyable (and comfortable) underwater excursion, so it is without a doubt an essential component of your gear.
